Planners OK Yarbrough

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

The largest single development application in city history made it past the planning commission on Thursday, with a 6-1 vote. The project now heads to the city council for an April 16 workshop prior to a final decision.

The only dissent on Thursday came from planning commissioner Rene Guerrero. Guerrero differed with the judgment of city staff that the Yarbrough project was consistent with the ideals of the city's "village"-oriented Southport Framework Plan. And he said the 3,000-home project just had two many units.

"I think I suggested a while back that the number of units be lowered a bit," said Guerrero. "I do see a lot of (potential) problems with traffic and access to the site."

The Yarbrough project comprises 711 acres in the city's far southwest. It is championed by David Stroud of ASB Properties, who also developed the Bridgeway Island and Bridgeway Lakes projects nearby.

Most of the city planning commissioners on Thursday opined that the project's concept plans – including pedestrian trains and a planned golf course – had addressed their initial concerns.

"'I live in the country, and cherish the rural atmosphere out there," said commission member Ron Morazzini before voting "yes."

"But my feelings have changed, and I have a better feel for what we have before us tonight."

"The key issues that have been identified have been addressed," said commission chairman Russell Liebig. "I believe this is the first project to actually capture the intent of the 'village' concept of the Southport Framework Plan."

The plan — penned in the early 1990s – called for several separate "villages" in Southport, each arranged around a core of higher-density homes and a local commercial area. Proponents of Yarbrough argue that the development fits that bill; opponents have focused on the project's request to build a thousand more units than foreseen in the framework plan.

A number of citizens spoke for and against Yarbrough at the planning commission's public hearing.

One resident called the project an "enlightened design," saying that the original Southport Framework Plan "is only a guideline but has to allow for improvements."

Another, Pat Flint, said her community group "Save Our City" was still unhappy with the project. The group had negotiated a city policy resolution that called for the goals of the framework plan to be followed.

Please see YARBROUGH, page 4

Celebrating riverfront

Officials from both sides of the river plan a special public celebration of the completion of pedestrian and bikeway improvements at the Tower Bridge. You're invited to join them on the bridge from 1 to 2 p.m. on Saturday, when it will be closed to vehicular traffic. The closure will last 12:30-2:30.

Sacramento Mayor Heather Fargo is expected, as is either West Sacramento Mayor Christopher Cabaldon or Mayor pro tem Bill Kristoff, said an event spokesperson. Also on hand will be Congressman Mike Thompson and Assemblywoman Lois Wolk – not to mention the River Cats mascot, "Dinger."

For more information about the event, detours and parking, visit www.sactowerbridge.org.

Suspect in arson, car-ramming turns self in

Mohammed Nazer Khan, the 22-year old West Sacramento man wanted in connection with a "Molotov coctail' incident and car-ramming incident in West Sacramento on March 30, is in jail.

"He arrived today with his attorney and turned himself in," reported West Sacramento Police Lieutenant Tod Sockman on Monday.

Police believe Khan was involved in a feud with a local man and his son. They allege that Khan threw some "incendiary devices" at the Kegle Drive residence of the other men. But the beer-bottle-and-gasoline-devices failed to start a fire. Later, Khan is alleged to have rammed the son's car from behind at a nearby intersection, then fired a shot (hitting no one) during a confrontation with the father on Hardy Drive.

Police – including helicopter and K-9 units – were not able to catch the suspect at that time.

Possible arson fire at dumpster by tire store

West Sacramento firefighters responded to a possible arson fire on Friday morning near the Goodyear tire and repair facility at the corner of Harbor Boulevard and West Capitol Avenue.

The fire was reported at 6:37 a.m. at 2725 West Capitol.

"There's a little strip mall there," said Division Chief Gary Fredericksen of the West Sacramento Fire Department.

"It was a dumpster fire with trees involved. There were about 20 tires next to the dumpster. There was heavy black smoke. There was about a 35-foot tree next to it, and that caught fire, too. It was next to a building, but didn't damage the building."

"We suspect arson," he added.

Body in river was that of West Sacto man

A man found dead in the river on Friday has been identified as William Clyde Casey, 56, of West Sacramento.

Casey's body was found "about 70 yards south of the Tower Bridge on the West Sacramento side, at about 5:15 p.m. on April 4," reports Michelle Wallace, a spokesperson for the Yolo County Sheriff/Coroner's office.

He was found by a homeless woman who was camping along the river.

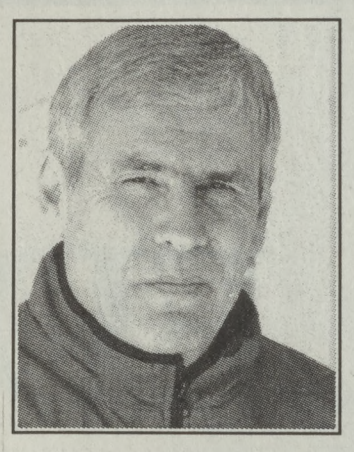
An autopsy was performed Monday, but further investigation was underway to determine the cause and circumstances of his death, added Wallace.

"The cause and manner of death are pending, but it's being investigated as a drowning," she said.

West Sacramento Police Lieutenant Tod Sockman said that Casey "hung around the river" a significant amount of time, and that "there was no sign of foul play or trauma."

Going in search of the 'boppy'

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

Last Wednesday, Will Edward James Stone made his way into the world, making me a proud grandpa for the second time. And after he and his mother had settled into their hospital room for what turned out to be a three-day stay, I found myself (like most men at such times, be they fathers or grandfathers) standing around trying to think of something constructive to do.

"Why don't you go back to the house and get the boppy, Dad," finally suggested my daughter, noticing that I looked a little uncomfortable in the crowded room as happy relatives passed the new baby around.

"Sure," I said. "I can do that."

"Thanks. I'm really going to need it soon."

"Then I'll go get it right this very minute!"

"Great."

"By the way," I asked as quietly as I could, hoping that no one else in the room (most of whom were women) would hear me, "what in the world is a boppy – and where can I find it?"

"You don't know what a boppy is?" asked my smiling daughter.

"Sorry."

"Well, it's a big pillow made into a horseshoe, and I'll need it to help me breastfeed the baby. He rests his head on it while he's feeding."

"And it looks like a horseshoe?"

"That's right, and I think you will find it in the baby's new room – right under his crib."

So, armed with the knowledge that a boppy looks like a big horseshoe, and confident that even I could find a big horseshoe in a baby room, away I sped from the hospital. And as I motored along, I found myself thinking about what a truly remarkable thing new life is, and how so many different things need to happen – and in just a certain way — for it all to turn out exactly like it does. More specifically, I found myself recalling something my 87-year old mother had just told me, that baby Will had been born only three days before what would have been the 90th wedding anniversary of her parents, Glen and Adelaide Cline.

"You know," she said with a smile, "if my mother hadn't changed her mind about my father and married him way back in 1918, none of us would be here holding sweet little Will."

"Your mom almost didn't marry your dad?" I asked with interest, having never heard that story before.

"For some reason, she just didn't like him at first," explained my mother, "and I'm not exactly sure why that was because my dad was very handsome and a really wonderful man. For instance, when it came to math, he was just about the smartest man in the whole town. In fact, I remember the high school math teacher sending me home with problems for my dad to solve so she could put them up on the blackboard the next day. And my dad was a very hard worker, too. His family's farm was one of the biggest ones in that area and he had to work really hard to keep it going. So I'm not sure what my mother's problem was with him when they first met."

"You mean when they first started dating?" I asked.

"That's right, but she once told me that he was very persistent and that he finally started to grow on her after awhile."

"So what kind of dates did they go on way back then?" I asked with interest.

"Well, both my parents grew up on farms back in a little place called Moravia, Iowa, and people didn't get into town that often, so most of my father and mother's dates were actually activities organized by their church."

"Really? Like what?"

"Well, they had such things back then as hay rides, and ice cream socials, and pie suppers."

"Pie suppers? I asked with surprise. "I've never even heard of that before. What was a pie supper?"

"Well, the teenage girls in the church would bake a pie or some cookies or some other kind of tasty dessert and wrap it up in a fancy box with a colorful ribbon around it. Then they would get themselves all dressed up and take their box over to the church, where the teenage boys would bid on it. No one was supposed to know which girl had made what box, but the boys usually had a way of finding out. Anyway, no one had much money back then, so a quarter was about all a boy needed to get himself a fresh homemade pie and some really nice company while eating it."

"So for 25-cents, the boy got himself both a delicious pie and the girl who baked it."

"That's right, but times were hard back then, and sometimes if the boy was careful about the way he bid, he could get both the pie and the girl for a lot less than a quarter."

As I successfully returned to the hospital with the boppy, I found myself once again thinking that so much of life really is a simple twist of fate. And although I had thought of such things before (for instance, that my grandfather on my father's side of the family had had to make it through World War I for my father to have been born, and that my father had had to make it through World War II for me to have been born), there was something especially comforting in knowing that almost a century ago, Glen and Adelaide Cline, of tiny Moravia, Iowa (two people I have long admired) had once "sparked and courted", and gone on hay rides together, and attended ice cream socials hand-in-hand, and even had themselves a romantic "pie supper" or two, thus doing their small part in the overall scheme of things that has made it possible for little Will Stone to make it into the world.

The University of Kansas (37-3) won its third national championship with a thrilling 75-68 overtime victory over the Memphis Tigers (38-2). The Tigers had the national championship in their grasp, leading the Jayhawks by 9 points with only two minutes remaining in the NCAA Title game.

Can you believe it's only Kansas third national championship and their first in 20 years! The Kansas powerhouse program went two decades without cutting down the nets at the "Big Dance". Danny Manning led the Jayhawks to their last NCAA title in 1988.

It took a 3-pointer by the "Final Four's Most Outstanding Player" Mario Chalmers to send Kansas fans into a long deserved frenzy. Chalmers lofted a long rainbow shot over Derrick Rose with 2.1 seconds left in regulation play to rally Kansas from a nine-point deficit.

Kansas dominated the last seven minutes of the game by outscoring Memphis 24 to 8 and grabbing 10 rebounds to only 3 by the stunned Tigers. The Tigers young guns went cold hitting on only 1 of 10 three-point attempts while Kansas knocked down 2-3 and made all 6 of their free throws down the wire.

The back breaker for the two-point favorite Memphis Tigers was the four free throws they missed in the final seconds of the game and then came a critical brain freeze by their players in not fouling Chalmers in the last seconds of the game which in hind sight turned out to be the game tying shot. The rest is NCAA history!

The Women's final four will crown their National champion on Wednesday night in Tampa, Florida with the Stanford Cardinal taking on the tournament favorite Tennessee. The Cardinal are lead by All-Everything, Candice Wiggins, who has propelled herself to the top of the list for the WNBA draft.

Kings Korner

The Kings (36-41) season is over but they continue to make life miserable for playoff contending teams especially the Denver Nuggets. The Kings strolled in Denver last Saturday night and stole a game from the playoff bound Nuggets. The Kings seem to be enjoying the role of spoilers but if the Warriors get past

RCHS tennis alone in first place

The River City High School tennis team is now alone in first place in the Capital Valley Conference (CVC) after victories against both West Campus (7-2) and Dixon (9-0). The Raiders are now 4-0 in the CVC.

The Raiders dropped just a pair of doubles matches against West Campus, while winning three and sweeping the four singles contests. Girls singles players Cindy Yang and Svetlana Istomin led the way for RC. In boys singles, Chris Salazar took the top spot 6-2,7-5 and Doug Tipton won easily at #2, 6-2,6-0. The doubles wins on the day, all by scores of 10-3, came from Jim Saetern and Phi Dinh (#1 boys), Yelena Ionova and Tamara Lopatin (#1 girls), and Dipak Patel and Sarah Aguilar (mixed). Trevor Langford and Thomas Thao fell 8-10 at #2 boys doubles, and Yian Saetern and Ranika Prasad suffered their first loss in 2008 in the #2 girls doubles position, 6-10.

River City dominated the girls singles matches in the shutout win against Dixon. Yang lost just four games at #1 and Ionova dropped just two games at #2. In boys singles, #1 Salazar (6-3,6-4) and #2 Tipton (4-6,6-2,6-3) both won their matches. the Kings on Tuesday in Oakland and the Nuggets beat the Clippers in Los Angeles, then both teams will be tied and play on Thursday in Oakland.

The Nuggets hold the tie breaker with Golden State but Dallas has a two-game lead for the seventh spot. Denver and Golden State (both 46-31) are in eighth place, with five games left and might earn the distinction of winning 49 games and not qualifying for the playoffs.

It would tie a record the 1971-72 Suns hold for the winningest season without a postseason. The 2000-01 Houston Rockets (45-37) had the best season without playoffs since the format expanded to eight teams per conference in 1984.

On a positive note, Kings guard Kevin Martin, is enjoying his finest year with Sacramento after missing 17 games earlier in the season with a groin strain. He has already broke his own Kings record for free throws made (482) and needs two more points to reach the minimum total to qualify among the league leaders in scoring. K-Mart is sixth in the NBA in scoring (23.7 points per game), behind Phoenix's Amare Stoudemire (25.2) and ahead of Dallas' Dirk Nowitzki (23.6).

The Kings will finish out the season with their road game to Oakland on Tuesday night followed by Portland at home on Friday (7 p.m.) and then the first place New Orleans Hornets invade Arco on Saturday (7 p.m.) night. The Kings will close out their season at the friendly confines of the Arco Arena on Monday night (7 p.m.) against another playoff bound team, the Tim Duncan lead San Antonio Spurs.

Diamond Notes

The Giants lost their home opener 8-4 on Monday to the San Diego Padres before the largest Opening Day crowd in nine seasons. The highlight of the game was the pre-game celebrated of their 50th anniversary of the Giants in San Francisco. It was great to see Willie Mays and the 1958 Giants but in reality it was the G-Men's first Opening Day without Barry Bonds since 1992.

I hate to be the bearer of bad news for Giants (1-6) fans but this team looks really bad and their appears to be no hope in their minor league system!

Speaking of minor league baseball, the River Cats home opener is set for Friday night April 11th and the Cats still have limited tickets remaining for the game against the Las Vegas 51s. Individual tickets for the River Cats' 2008 regular season home opener on Friday are currently available at the Raley Field Ticket Office or online at Rivercats.com.

As part of the Opening Day festivities, the team will hold a celebration in honor of last year's PCL and Triple-A Championship with a pre-game championship ring ceremony, pre-game championship autograph session and replica rings for the first 3,000 fans.

Enjoy your day – see ya next week!

"We did not go forward with our (ballot) initiative because we felt we negotiated in good faith with the city manager and council," said Flint. "Go back and work with staff for something that comes close to our resolution."

Several owners of "rural" home parcels surrounded by Yarbrough warned that the new, higher-density development at their property lines created "incompatible" land uses. Developer Stroud said he had attempted to negotiate various solutions with these owners, including possibly including their property in the Yarbrough project – but no solution had been reached.

Resident Kimber Goddard was one, saying he had a home on a five-acre parcel, soon to be "an island of agricultural zoning surrounded by a sea of housing." He asked for his property to be rezoned by the city, or for a hundred-foot buffer at the near edge of Yarbrough.

Speaking of Goddard, developer Stroud responded that "if somebody can somehow guarantee him that his property will someday be developed, I think his issue will go away."

Several residents, including Denice Seals and Lori Heavin, said the development was good for West Sacramento partly for business reasons.

"As residents of Southport, we empathize with traffic concerns," said Seals, "but some additional residential units may be necessary" to bring retail opportunity.

Heavin admitted the project would be good for her mortgage industry, but also praised the project's proposed trails:

"I would like to be able to drive out there and park my car and walk around," she said. "I do believe it's a positive project. I believe in David (Stroud)."

DEATH OF MRS. BRAUN FOLLOWS PROLONGED SICKNESS

Last Tuesday, May 10th, Mrs. Pauline Braun passed away at her home on Harriett street following a prolonged sickness, during which she was confined to her home during a great part of the time.

Only a few days ago she was able to be around her home and even made trips to the Postoffice and the grocery store, but she was taken suddenly last Tuesday and quietly passed away surrounded by her children. She was 53 years 2 months and 16 days old, a native of Germany, which place she left many years ago.

Mrs. Braun had been a resident of Washington for over 20 years, and was highly esteemed by many friends who knew her principally as a fond and loving mother and a dutiful wife.

Mrs. Braun paid little attention to ladies' clubs and other such entertainments. Her home was her castle and to it she devoted all her time and attention.

She was a member of the Washington Community Church and of the Washington Improvement Club.

Her funeral was held from her home yesterday afternoon, thence to the Baptist Church on Ninth street, in Sacramento, where services were read, interment being in the City Cemetery, near her late husband, Charles Braun.

She leaves three children, Edwin, Selma and Charlie Braun, to mourn her.

WANDERING COUPLE BECOME INVOLVED IN QUARREL; WIFE SHOOTS AND KILLS

Last Wednesday evening about 5:30 p. m. A. Caffero, with his sister Olga, while passing the Todhunter barn at Third and Elizabeth streets, heard a revolver shot and on investigation discovered John Greenhouse bleeding to death from a bullet wound in his right temple.

His wife, Edna Greenhouse, lay sobbing over the wounded body, weeping hysterically because she claimed she had accidentally wounded her husband.

Greenhouse was taken to the emergency hospital in Sacramento where he was given first aid, but on removal to the County Hospital he died about 6:30 p. m.

Mrs. Greenhouse made the following statement to the authorities:

"We were quarreling, first over my suspicion that he wanted to meet another girl, then over what we would have for supper. To scare him, I pulled a revolver from the bureau drawer.

"He was 10 feet away then. I thought he started for me. I didn't mean to shoot him, but the gun exploded and he fell, with a gaping wound in his temple from which the blood gushed in torrents.

"This nauseated me. I took some rags and with my finger stuffed them into the hole in his head to stop the terrible flow of blood."

The foregoing was the story of last night's shooting of John Greenhouse, as told to authorities by Edna Greenhouse, his 19-year-old wife. District Attorney McDonald conducted the inquisition at the Yolo County jail, where she is held.

"I just suspected him of wanting to meet someone," she continued. "I did not suspect any particular woman, but when I accused him we started to quarrel. Then, as I was getting supper, he suggested that we have ice cream for supper, and said he would run down to the store to get it.

"Then I accused him of going there to meet some other girl. We quarreled harder than ever, and during this, I got the gun. God knows, I didn't mean to kill him."

The Greenhouse family were treated very kindly by Constable Buckingham and his daughter about two weeks ago.

They arrived in this neighborhood in what appeared to be a destitute condition and traveling in a camp wagon drawn by one horse.

They were arrested after having been found pilfering from the home of Antonio Mercedo, but he refused to prosecute because he believed them suffering from hunger.

Constable Buckingham took them in, giving them clothing and something to eat. He also found work for the husband, and even begged the Independent to be lenient with the couple so that he might not lose his job.

Subsequent to the shooting a receipt was found among their possessions for the payment of a safe deposit box in the Merchants National Bank of Los Angeles where the woman admitted she had $203 in one package and $647 in another, together with liberty bonds and war savings stamps amounting to about $1,000.

Mrs. Greenhouse admitted that her husband had made a will which is now in the Los Angeles safe deposit box.

Accused of shooting her husband, she admitted to the authorities she fired the shot but did not intend to kill.

An inquest will be held Saturday morning by Deputy Coroner Wilson. The preliminary trial will be held later on.

POPULAR YOUNG LADY WED IN SACRAMENTO

Last Wednesday, May 11th, Venus May D'Anis was married to Andrew Lagomarsino at St. Mary's Church, 7th and T Streets, Sacramento, by Rev. Father Taverna.

The wedding was a quiet one, attended only by a few near relatives of the contracting parties.

The event was not unexpected, because the young couple had been keeping company for some time and were only waiting for the spring time to become man and wife.

Mrs. Lagomarsino was born in Washington and educated in the public school here. She is a quiet and unassuming little lady, esteemed by all who know her.

The groom is a member of the firm of Lagomarsino & Sons at Third and J streets, Sacramento. He is an industrious and capable business man, having many business connections in the Capital City.

The young couple have gone to Yosemite Valey for their honeymoon, and will likely make their home in Sacramento on their return.

OPINION

GUEST COMMENTARY:

Your local agricultural department

By Beth Gabor
Yolo County Public Information Officer
& Kimberly Bellows
U.C. Davis Intern

March is National Agriculture Month, so what better opportunity to sing the praises of Yolo County's Agriculture Department. This month we'll focus on the Environmental Protection and Agricultural Services division, and check into the Consumer Protection and Pest Management division in a future column.

Agriculture plays a key role in Yolo County's heritage, landscape and economy. Currently, 88% of Yolo County's population lives within its cities, with almost 99% (607,232 acres) of its unincorporated land designated for agricultural use. The total gross valuation for all agricultural commodities coming out of Yolo County in 2006 was over $370 million. So for the Yolo County Agriculture Department, environmental protection means protections for agriculture.

To protect agriculture the department has programs in place for pest detection, exclusion and eradication. Pest detection includes setting traps throughout the county for pests like the glassy winged sharpshooter or the gypsy moth. Pest exclusion includes inspecting incoming plant material from trucks and other shipments. Pest eradication could include quarantining or spraying. Fortunately, Yolo County rarely has to cross that bridge due to strong detection and exclusion efforts.

Along with inspections of incoming products, the county must also certify agricultural products headed to other California counties, out of state or abroad. Different governments have their own certification requirements, some of which involve field inspections, particularly for those plants that produce seeds for sale. The county also has a Nursery and Seed program that inspects incoming nursery stock and seed at retail locations for pests.

Beyond inspections, pesticide use is strongly regulated and enforced in Yolo County to ensure the safety of plants and people. The county issues permits for the usage of pesticides and receives pesticide use reports from farmers. Additionally, the department offers pesticide use training programs for farmers and farmworkers, which include instruction in Spanish.

In the midst of inspecting and training, the department maintains agricultural statistics through the collection of data on all crops and livestock grown in Yolo, as well as pests detected and eradicated. This culminates in the release of an annual crop report. Current and past reports can be found at http://www.yolocounty.org/org/AG/stats.htm. While most of the top crops have shifted positions in the Top 10 List over the years, tomatoes have consistently been Yolo County's number one agricultural commodity since 1960.

Yolo County Agricultural Commissioner Rick Landon, explains that having an agricultural department at the county level is unique to California. In most states agriculture, and weights and measures (another responsibility of the department) are regulated at the state level.

"County agriculture departments allow for local control and local solutions to problems," notes Landon. "I feel like we do a good job of protecting consumers and aiding farmers."

To celebrate National Agriculture Month, and Yolo County's top crop, don't miss The Big Tomato event, presented by the Yolo Country Agricultural Marketing Initiative (www.atasteofyolo.com) and being held Saturday, March 15, 10:00 a.m. to noon, at the Davis Farmers Market.

Letters to the Editor

Child Abuse Prevention Month

The Department of Employment and Social Services (DESS) strongly supports the month of April as Child Abuse Prevention Month. It is our sincere hope that this proclamation will be substantial in the efforts of reducing child abuse through child abuse awareness, prevention and awareness.

In 2007, our Child Welfare Service Department received 1899 calls of suspected child abuse or neglect and conducted nearly 1,400 child abuse investigations. It is a fact that our county has substantiated 599 cases of child abuse resulting from referrals in 2007. Not all of these children are in Foster Care; the majority of these children were able to remain safely in their own homes. We encourage citizens to continue to make reporting calls for suspected child abuse.

Let's not wait until our kids get hurt. Our goal is to assist families in need with prevention and early intervention. Yolo County has many resources for individuals who seek parental support. For example, the Yolo Family Resource Center has a parent support group dedicated to improving parent and child relationships. For more information on the Parent Support Group, you may contact the Yolo Family Resource Center at 530-406-7221. Parenting classes are also available at Woodland Community College.

Currently, Yolo County has 58 licensed Foster Care homes, yet our need is much greater. DESS is continually recruiting for Foster Parents. Anyone interested in information on how to become a foster parent should call our Foster Care hotline at 888-829-8691 and make a difference in one of our children's lives today.

CRITIC'S CORNER

"Dr. Seuss' Horton Hears A Who!"

Running Time: 88 minutes
MPAA rating: G

I guess the third time's a charm. The first two attempts at bringing the works of Dr. Seuss to the big screen ("Cat in the Hat" and "How the Grinch Stole Christmas") looked like they came from Poo-ville rather than Who-ville. Thankfully, "Dr. Seuss' Horton Hears A Who!" is finally the Dr. Seuss movie we've all been waiting for. Who knew?

One of the reasons "Horton" is so good is that it's an animated feature rather than live action, so all the whimsy of Seuss' visual style can be fully realized. Another reason is that although released by 20th Century Fox, the film has ex-Pixar animator Jimmy Hayward onboard as one of the directors. Hayward worked on such Pixar classics as "Finding Nemo," "Monsters Inc." and the two "Toy Story" films.

Let's add to the mix a funny script that has laughs for both kids and grownups and wonderful vocal performances by Jim Carrey (as Horton), the awesome Carol Burnett (as Kangaroo) and Steve Carell (as the Mayor of Who-ville).

For those who need a refresher on the story: Horton is a happy-go-lucky elephant in the land of Nool. One day he hears a sound coming from a dust speck on a clover. He discovers there is a teeny civilization, Who-ville, existing on the dust speck. The self-proclaimed leader of Nool, Kangaroo, who "pouch-schools" her joey, says that since we can't see Who-ville it cannot, must not, exist. It must be destroyed.

Horton tries valiantly to save the dust speck from the evil machinations of Kangaroo, while the teensy Mayor of Who-ville tries to convince his constituents that there is a world beyond theirs and they must make themselves known if they are to survive.

Horton (voiced by Jim Carrey) takes a gander at Whoville.

This version of "Horton," while not the same as the classic TV special (no monkeys chanting "boil that dust speck"), and despite the awful REO Speedwagon musical ending (too "Shrek"y), is well worth the price of admission.

Corkscrews With Spring Veggies

Toss sautéed asparagus and leeks with pasta and creamy goat cheese. Yum!

- 1 bunch (about 1 pound) leeks
- 1 package (16 ounce) corkscrew or bow-tie pasta
- 1 tablespoon margarine or butter
- 1 pound asparagus, trimmed and cut diagonally into 2-inch pieces
- 1 package (4 ounces) soft goat cheese, cut into small pieces

1. Cut off roots and leaf ends from leeks. Discard any tough outer leaves. Cut each leek lengthwise in half, then crosswise into 1/4-inch-wide slices. Place leeks in large bowl of cold water; with hand, swish leeks around to remove any sand. Transfer leeks to colander. Repeat process, changing water several times, until all sand is removed. Drain well.

2. In large saucepot, prepare pasta in boiling salted water as label directs.

3. Meanwhile, in nonstick 12-inch skillet, melt margarine or butter over medium heat. Add leeks and cook until almost tender, about 5 minutes, stirring often. Stir in asparagus, 3/4 teaspoon salt and 1/4 teaspoon coarsely ground black pepper; cook 5 minutes longer, stirring often. Add 1/3 cup water; cover and cook 3 to 5 minutes, until asparagus is tender-crisp.

4. Drain pasta, reserving 3/4 cup pasta cooking water. Return pasta to saucepot. Add asparagus mixture and pasta cooking water; toss well. Spoon into large serving bowl; sprinkle with goat cheese and coarsely ground black pepper. Serves 4.

Fave Foods of the Famous

Paige Davis

Any newcomer to show business, as well as many entertainment-industry veterans, would love to trade spaces with the effervescent Paige Davis, star of TLC's "Trading Spaces." Her Broadway credits are endless, from starring in "Chicago" to touring with "Sweet Charity," as well as roles in legendary shows like "West Side Story" and "A Chorus Line." With Davis' return to "Trading Spaces," fans can expect more of her witty and creative approach to design and home comfort. Her bestselling book, "Paige by Paige, A Year of Trading Spaces," is available everywhere. To learn more: www.paige-davis.com and www.tlc.discovery.com

What's your favorite kitchen-related challenge?

"The biggest kitchen challenge I ever faced was ironically in the smallest kitchen I ever had. My apartment was a typical Manhattan experience — fourth-floor walk-up, cramped. The kitchen was incredibly small.

"One holiday season I decided to take on the masochistic challenge of hosting a dinner party. I sought out and prepared some of the most challenging gourmet recipes I could find. For some reason, the size of my kitchen did not deter me. Ingenuity became the name of the game. I balanced bowls on my fireplace mantle, had plates resting on bookshelves and veggies drying in my bathroom sink. But somehow it all came together, and it was absolutely delicious. I lapped up the praise and felt so happy that I had brought all that laughter and love into our home.

"You know, the apartment was never the same after that. It was transformed in my mind. Instead of being small and dark, I saw it as filled with promise and life."

Can you compare your work on the show with your efforts at the stove in your kitchen? Is a great designer like a great chef?

"I believe you can absolutely compare being a great designer to being a great chef. And it is precisely why I am neither. In any creative field, a person has to be brave. They must blaze their own trail. They must create their own map.

"I do love to cook, but I consider myself just that, a cook. I need a recipe. In fact, I slavishly follow recipes. A chef is someone who creates. A chef experiments, has a point of view and a style all their own. They create tastes. A truly good designer does the same thing. They think outside the box, see things differently and bring beauty and taste together."

If you could "trade spaces" with anyone famous in the food industry, who would it be, and why?

"I'd want to trade spaces with the "Take Home Chef," Curtis Stone. I have a mad crush on him. He rocks my world ... pun intended."

THAI-STYLE HALIBUT WITH COCONUT-CURRY BROTH

- 2 teaspoons vegetable oil
- 4 shallots, finely chopped (about 3/4 cup)
- 2 1/2 teaspoons red curry paste, or 2 teaspoons curry powder*
- 2 cups low-sodium chicken broth
- 1/2 cup light coconut milk
- 1/2 teaspoons salt, plus 1/4 teaspoon, plus more for seasoning
- 4 (6-ounce) pieces halibut fillet, skin removed
- *Steamed spinach
- 1/2 cup coarsely chopped fresh cilantro leaves
- 2 scallions, green part only, thinly sliced
- 2 tablespoons fresh lime juice
- Freshly ground black pepper
- 2 cups cooked brown rice, for serving

*Available in the Asian section of most supermarkets
Steam or microwave 5 cups of washed baby spinach for 2 minutes

1. In a large sauté pan, heat the oil over moderate heat. Add shallots and cook, stirring occasionally, until beginning to brown, 3 to 5 minutes. Add curry paste and cook, stirring, until fragrant, about 30 seconds. Add chicken broth, coconut milk and 1/2 teaspoon salt, and simmer until reduced to 2 cups, about 5 minutes.

2. Season the halibut with 1/4 teaspoon salt. Arrange fish in sauté pan and gently shake pan so fish is coated with sauce. Cover and cook until the fish flakes easily with a fork, about 7 minutes.

3. Arrange a pile of steamed spinach in the bottom of 4 soup plates. Top with the fish fillets. Stir cilantro, scallions and lime juice into the sauce, and season to taste with salt and pepper. Ladle sauce over the fish, and serve with rice.

(Recipe from the Food Network's Ellie Krieger, who is Paige's neighbor.)

Strange But True

By Samantha Weaver

• In the small Asian country of Bhutan, nestled in the mountains between China and India, there was no access to TV until 1999, and the capital city (if you can call it a city) still has not a single traffic light.

• It was Rwandan humanitarian leader Paul Rusesabagina who made the following sage observation: "There is no greater gift to an insecure leader that quite matches a vague enemy who can be used to whip up fear and hatred among the population."

• Other than the fact that they were all famous writers, what did Charles Dickens, Edgar Allen Poe, Mark Twain, Louisa May Alcott, James A. Michener and Leo Tolstoy have in common? They were all adopted.

• The medical journal Pediatrics conducted a study of 38 animated films, including "Sleeping Beauty," "Dumbo," "Beauty and the Beast," "Pinocchio," "Fantasia" and "Peter Pan," and its finding were somewhat surprising for films created for children. The films studied showed an average of 42 seconds of alcohol use.

• If you live in the South, you're very familiar with that plant known as Spanish moss. You might not realize, though, that it didn't come from Spain, and it's not even a moss. In fact, Spanish moss is closely related to the pineapple.

• If you're out in the American West, you may see the iconic saguaro cactus. It's extremely slow-growing — it might grow only 6 inches in its first 10 years of life. It's persistent, though; the largest known specimen reached 60 feet in height.

• You may not have realized it, but record producer, musical arranger and Academy Award-winning film composer and trumpeter Quincy Jones has a somewhat unusual middle name: Delight.

San Pedro group celebrates Easter, plans summer fun

From Sharon A. Freitas
Director, San Pedro Association

On Saturday, March 22, the annual membership meeting of the San Pedro Association (SPA) was held following the annual Easter egg hunt and lunch. Approximately 40 children participated in egg toss games; hunted for candy-filled eggs and visited the 6-foot tall Easter Bunny. Following the children events, a short business meeting was held to elect the eleven directors for 2008 and confirm the schedule of events.

The SPA directors for 2008-2009 are all children or grandchildren of the original founders of the association and live in various communities. Newly elected are Camilo Cervantes (Orangevale), Mary Fischer, Dennis Freitas, Sharon Freitas, Randy Freitas, Steven Freitas, Cathy Ingram-Kelly & Rita Macias (all from Sacramento), Larry Freitas & Valerie O'Connor (Elk Grove) and Irene Santiago (West Sacramento). These hard working leaders will represent the 80 families who are currently members of the SPA.

Events approved for the coming summer include:

- Community Yard Sale open to the public on Saturday, May 3 from 8 am to 3 pm
- The Annual St. Peter's Festival on Sunday, June 29 from noon to 5 pm
- A Maderia Heritage Day in San Pedro Park on Saturday, September 27

Details about these events can be found at the SPA web site at www.sanpedroassociation.org. Contact either Sharon or Dennis Freitas at (916) 421-5768 if you want to participate in the Community Yard Sale or purchase tickets for the other events.
